Introduction to the Constitution

The NBPSA was established in 2012 to address the isolated and fragmented services for children experiencing neurodevelopmental and behavioural (NDB) disorders across Australasia.

By providing a focused collegiate environment for clinicians, NBPSA aims to support ongoing improvements in the quality and consistency of both NDB paediatric practice and the expert advice available to governments and policy makers and others responsible for planning, organising and delivering services for children with NDB conditions.

NBPSA has no single diagnostic focus so that it can provide impartial, consensus driven advice on the complex array of behaviours, assessments, diseases and interventions that can affect a child's development.

To summarise the Objects of the NBPSA set out in Clause 6 of this Constitution, the NBPSA has two connected aims as a health promotion charity:

- that children with, or who are at risk of having NDB disorders can experience more successful childhoods and, as a result, achieve their personal potential to become happy and contributing adult members of society; and,
- that the clinicians who care for these children and families will experience professional lives that are effective and sustainable.

Neurodevelopmental is intended to broadly encompass child development. The prefix 'neuro' implies that functional developmental impairment is believed to result from disordered growth or damage to the developing central nervous system. This presumption includes situations where causal processes may result from early childhood environment and experience. Because neurological aetiology is often inferred rather than clearly identifiable, the term 'neurodevelopmental' is used synonymously with the term 'developmental' which more generally reflects the observable consequences.

Behavioural indicates that many disorders of child development are associated with behaviours that fall beyond normal social expectations. Understanding these behaviours requires consideration of the full complex psychological and social context of the child, past and present, in addition to consideration of biological factors.

Australasia is intended to reflect a focus for the organisation on Australia and Aotearoa New Zealand, but may also include neighbouring countries such as those in South-East Asia and the Pacific Region.

- 37.4 The President and the meeting minutes do not need to state the number or proportion of the votes recorded in favour or against on a show of hands.

38. When and how a vote in writing must be held

- 38.1 A vote in writing may be demanded on any resolution instead of or after a vote by a show of hands by:

39.8 A proxy appointment may specify the way the proxy must vote on a particular resolution.

- (a) does not need to vote, unless the proxy appointment specifies the way they must vote
